At E3 2018, FIFA and Visceral Games announced that all players who play on FIFA will now be captured in the Frostbite engine. And with Visceral Games guiding the way with their cutting-edge motion capture technology, players who step foot on the field of play will experience gameplay that is more exciting than ever before. FIFA 18

In May of 2017, EA Sports announced the inclusion of "Extended Player Attributes" to FIFA 18. The attributes are designed to give players even more control over their player creation features than before. These attributes are inspired by attributes from EA SPORTS FIFA 17, with the 16 attributes creating more direct control over the creation process, while working in conjunction with the existing skills. FIFA Ultimate Team will have new equipment attributes that reflect the values the player brings to the squad. A graphical overhaul is under way in FIFA 18: for the first time in the franchise's 15-year history, all player faces will be 3D, allowing for more realistic player animation. There will be a redesigned goalkeeper / goalkeeper equipment models. In FIFA 18, a new "Reactions" system will allow the player to make multiple reaction decisions throughout the game on the fly and choose from the possible reactions, which can dramatically alter the course of the game. All of these changes are meant to make the gameplay more immersive for the player. A new feature introduced in FIFA 18 titled "Faces of Fame" allows players to create their own legends: a new dynamic way to earn FIFA Ultimate Team coins and Coins Packs and FIFA Ultimate Team packs in the upcoming FIFA 18, that not only can be played solo, but also cooperatively online with friends. In September 2015, FIFA announced that it would be the first time in the franchise's history that players could use their own customizations to customize the FIFA World Player model. In FIFA 16, players could only choose from the three base body shapes (and skin tone) of their chosen player, and then their choice of two facial features (facial hair and a nose). The system did not allow for any unique customizations. FIFA 17 In June 2015, the latest iteration of the FIFA franchise was released with "FIFA 17," the first iteration of the FIFA franchise to be powered by the Frostbite engine. The engine, which was first used for the Battlefield series of games, introduces "Player Intelligence" that allows players to unlock additional attributes and abilities by completing challenges in-game.
