(1935 film) Spencer (1935) is a lost American drama film directed by George W. Irish, written by Norman Reilly Raine, and starring Henry Fonda, Cornel Wilde, Sydney Greenstreet and Ralph Bellamy. It was released in 1938 by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Plot Private detective Sam Spencer (Henry Fonda) must solve the murder of New York City taxidermist Harold Grant (Sydney Greenstreet) while staying at a summer hotel. He suspects an unseen killer but the facts are unclear. The elusive Grant suspected no one: he kept his many women, including wife Jennie (Helen Chandler), his friends alive in his taxidermy garden, and his latest work (Momma) was a life-sized creature of exotic beauty. Grant suspects Louise Grant (Robin de Voren) of having an affair. Though estranged from her husband, Jennie believes that Louise killed him for stealing her handbag. Jennie persuades Spencer to search the house but both their search and other investigative methods fail; Jennie thinks that the police will not help due to her past marriage problems. At a party in the country where the Grants were staying, they meet other couples including Louise, the domineering former nightclub chanteuse Millie Irving, her husband Walter (Ralph Bellamy), and the wealthy Paul Leile (Reginald Owen). All are referred to as "Grant" and Louise is shown in a photograph wearing her own dress as the inspiration for the new Grant. Spencer is introduced at the party as "the great detective", and Jennie introduces him to her boss, Richard King (Cornel Wilde). Spencer and Jennie wait at the train station, but Louise and Walter arrive there first. Jennie and King travel to the home of Louise's mother, Dinah (Dorothy Mackaill), who they discover to be ill. A photograph of Louise and the real Harold Grant is discovered, which shows a man and a woman. Finally, Monsignor Ryan (Gale Sondergaard) suggests that Jennie talk to in her childhood confessor (Humphrey Yador) who might be able to uncover details of Jennie's past. Jennie becomes increasingly obsessed with finding the truth in the murder and realizes her falsity to King, who she believes has no real family. Then she goes to Monsignor Ryan,
