The CarFax report on the 1985 Jaguar S-Type should have raised the alarm for it was out of service since 2005. Now it has been on the market again after a seemingly successful management change. Adam Levens reports. Are you of course a car enthusiast and do you like classics? Well, your Jaguar S-Type turned 10 years old recently, which is a lot of time for your car. But is it a good time too? We sat down with Adam Levens, the owner of the S-Type and I think we can safely say that he knows quite a bit about cars. And he got the car quite a few years ago when it was first released. We wanted to know what were its most notable strengths and weaknesses, as well as what are its future plans? "Unfortunately, I don't want to release any of the details of the project I am taking on," Levens tells us. "I wish to bring it back to its former glory." What is interesting is that the S-Type is only getting its sixth-gen engine, which Levens is referring to as "The H". As it was in the mid-1990s the S-Type was originally powered by a turbocharged version of the 6.2-liter AJ-V8. The V8 engine is getting a power boost as compared to the base model. The hot-running induction system and a turbocharger have been added for the "H" engine, as well as a new six-speed automatic transmission. "It will have the same sound and feel as the V8 but with more power," Levens is quoted by CarsGuide. The new S-Type looks strikingly different compared to the previous model, which had five doors and was front-engine and rear-wheel drive, too. It also looked more modern than the previous model. Levens told us that the car is going to be completely redesigned for 2019. So what do you think of the new model? Are you going to go for it? Will it be a successful return to its former glory? Tell us your thoughts in the comments! 5iRanger 5 Crack
