lorraine, i used to use the snail bee vein essence as a spot treatment. i do not know if it has changed its ingredients, but the product is no longer available at all stores. i just checked and it is only available at their website. out of curiosity, how do you feel your skin tolerates different scents? i'm curious to know what kind of scent types you prefer when it comes to both skincare and lifestyle products that you use. i like spicier scents like tea tree, lemon and lavender. but sometimes if i smell something really fresh like a soap or shampoo from a certain shop, i can't stand it. for skincare, my skin just likes lotion with a light scent. i also recently started using the pien, which is a korean brand (they also sell benton products) and their stuff just seems too intense for me. i should probably find a way to tone it down with another soap, or maybe try something else. in terms of lifestyle products, i definitely like the scent of a certain brand of coffee (i cant remember the name). i love the smell, but i dont think it has any affect on my skin care. ooh, this sounds like a really interesting idea! unfortunately, benton products are quite exclusive in korea, so its difficult to find them. however, i recommend checking the sephora sephora counter if you cant find it in a local store. also, since it takes some time to receive the products in korea, i recommend finding someone in the us who would be willing to ship it to you. i know its a pain, but try requesting your friend on social media and see what happens. i love the benton products because they are my go-to skincare that actually works. they are truly the best in their class. i suggest that you try the benton products yourself and see if they work for you. you can find a full review of the toner in this post: check out my post on the benton lotion p50.

SILK LABO After Summer Days

thanks for the replies. i was thinking of trying the avocado oil first (i used the shiseido sun relief sunscreen/cream before). i'll give it a go and see how it goes! i noticed that liquid foundation tends to leave a white cast despite using mineral foundation too. i really do want a non-white product, as i want to use a lovely foudntation (mac strobe cream). this has absolutely been my favorite serum ive used for years. no need to put on any makeup or blush, this will fill in my pores and make my face look so smooth. after a long night i can get right on top of it and not worry about a visible white cast. my face looks so refreshed! i've heard such great things about the benton line and am so very excited to try some of their products. i like the matting products with this serum: i get a glowing, healthy looking complexion. it's the best! i have a fear of finding products that will make me oily. silly i know, and the solution is not to continue adding products to the list that will make you oily. before i started using the benton line products, i found myself getting oily from using them. they are truly magic on the skin and just allow your skin to glow and look so healthy and radiant. many of the photos of the benton models on your site look the same. they just glow. it doesn't appear that their makeup is heavy or doing anything to make them look oily. so sorry for the bother charlotte, i just have to agree with you that it's much better to use products that will make you feel and look great than ones that will make you extra oily. i am on the lookout for products that will make me feel and look great, but they have to be natural. there is nothing better on the planet than the look of glowing skin. 5ec8ef588b
